If Dakota had a democratic majority, there would be no delay in admitting it into the Union by a democratic congress.

There is yet a good show for John A. Logan to go back to the Senate. "Black Jack" can't be buried by a single defeat.

The republicans will start the new year pretty well considering their recent defeat. They will have 16 governors of states—all in the north—and 19 state legislatures—all in the north. This is a gain of two governors and four legislatures.

It has been nearly four years and a half since the tenth census was taken, and still it is not finished. It is like the Bartholdi pedestal fund, progressing very slowly, but like the latter, may be completed before the day of judgment.

The combined democratic pluralities in the two Virginias at the late election, was about 10,000. Four years ago they were 65,000. In Tennessee, Hinde's plurality was 45,000, and four years ago Hancock's was 24,000. This year Cleveland's was only 9,000. Will George W. Curtis please note these figures?

There are about 15,000 office-holders living off the government in Washington, of whom about 5,000 are under the timely protection of the civil service law. Thus, it will be seen that some 10,000 young men and women, who have been holding easy positions, will see as the New York Tribune expresses it, that March 4th, is written "March forth."

It is a pretty good rule to "thank God and be content" when we have an abundance and little to spare. Judge Tammie didn't think so, and he put $30,000 in "Our Continent" magazine, and lost every cent of it. He is now sick—disappointed and penitent. But he may write such a book as "The Poor Extravagant," will not be penniless.

In Hon. A. K. Davis, who was a slave but in the war, and became Lieutenant-governor of Mississippi during Ame's administration, died at Canton, last week. At the time of his death he was a Methodist preacher. His career, like that of J. E. Remey of South Carolina, or John R. Lynch, of Mississippi, was a remarkable one. He became a great orator and a scholar.

It seems that one wing of the democratic party will try to observe the civil service law, while another will attempt to disregard it altogether. The party will be like "A man who had an anger, That bore two holes at once."

It will try to do two things at a time—respect civil service as Mr. Cleveland promises, and make a clean sweep as Mr. Hendricks threatens.

Mr. Robert J. Burdette, the humorist, has severed his connection with the Burlington Hawkeye and taken up a permanent residence at Ardmore, Pennsylvania. In taking his leave of the paper he says: "There is no quarrel; we still speak as we pass by; but I have decided to make my home in Montgomery county. The Hawkeye can't come down here to be edited, and I won't go to Burlington to edit it; hence, after twenty years of harmonious union, we separate amicably and I go out peacefully."

Jenny Lind, whose name will be pleased with song in all lands for many generations to come, is an "honorary" member of the faculty of the College of Music, Albert Hall, London. But this little woman, with ample riches and enduring fame, is not a drowne in the faculty of the College of Music. She is the most devoted teacher there, indeed, to a striking degree, tremendously strict, but the idol of her scholars, and is the last teacher to leave the hall.

The Eau Claire Free Press, speaking of the senatorial question says: "As to the press and the legislature, the press is not now so near being a unit, and the republicans in the legislature are not likely to imitate their predecessors of 1881 in the Sawyer-Kayes campaign. Colone John C. Spooner and General Lucius Fairchild are the leading favorites, with Hon. W. T. Price thrown in for ballast. As yet, Colose Spooner is on the lead in numbers and strength of supporters, and also in the arguments and reasons for his election."

Fame, or notoriety, or whatever you may call it, is easily won by some individuals. Victoria Morosini, of New York, was a very common girl, but her father was rich. She ran off and married father's coachman—an overgrown, ignorant young fellow—and this cranky act made her famous. She was talked about from one end of the nation to the other, and when she became thoroughly advertised, she determined to take the concert stage, and one night last week in Philadelphia, 2,000 people paid one dollar apiece to hear her sing. She tried to sing, but made a failure of it, but the people were satisfied to pay a dollar each to see a rich girl who was silly enough to run away with her father's coachman and marry him. They saw the woman and didn't care about the singing. Victoria Morosini—huh—can work the dodge for a while, but not long, as the novelty of seeing her will soon pass away.

The disagreeable operation of forcing snuff into the head, and the use of exciting snuff, are being superseded by Ely's Cream Balm, a cure for Catarrh, Colds in the head and Hay Fever. Price 50 cents.

Apply directly with the Doctor.

Mrs. Johnston, Holloway & Co., who are purveyors of Philadelphia, Pa., report that some time ago a gentleman, handed them a card which requested to send a good catarrh cure to a certain gentleman. He told them that both the doctor and the wife of a well-known U. S. A. general had been cured of Catarrh by the two bottles of Ely's Cream Balm.

FOR WHAT A DEMOCRAT GIVES THANKS.

Last week the editor of the Philadelphia Press asked two or three score of public men for what they were most thankful, and among those who responded was Henry Watterson, the young and brilliant editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, the widely-read democratic paper of the west. Mr. Watterson gives twenty reasons why he is thankful and why the democratic party should be thankful, and as there are both humor and sentiment in the reasons, we give them to the readers of the Gazette:

That Dr. Burchard did not die twelve months ago.
That Mr. Blaine did attend the dinner at Delmonico's.
That Mr. Cleveland kept his mouth measurably shut during the canvass.
That the most disgraceful political campaign, "all hands round" in American history is ended.

That New York is not Pennsylvania.
That B. F. Jones is not a bigger man than old Zebulon.
That the national convention is going to have a change of place.

That this change of parties will put an end to the sectionalism, north and south, and smash the delusion that only one political body, and a single set of party leaders are qualified to govern the country.

That we shall get a genuine reform of the civil service and a thorough revision of the tariff.

That the nation is reunited.

That Don Cameron is to remain in the Senate as an awful example!

That the good old Quincy city is opening its eyes to the truth, laying aside the crab and threadbare garments of protection and putting on the jack-boots of freedom, with brass toes and heels in the front.

That the newly-elected president is going to be married.

That Sam Randall is likely to go out of the house into the cabinet.

These are some of the reasons from a political point of view why Mr. Wetterton can devoutly give thanks, but there are other reasons why he gives thanks, in that he will be joined by all republicans, and a single set of party leaders are qualified to govern the country.

That God is with us; that the government of our fathers has not perished, but reigns supreme under God; that the president of the United States has administered the greatest trust which came to him at a most trying moment so wisely and so fairly as to make him the chief magician of all the people in spirit and in name, and that his Thanksgiving proclamation is something more than an official document that slavery being dead, and dead and damned, there is no longer any room for the Southern Confederacy.

ON DECK AGAIN AT THE COUNTRY'S CAPITAL.

Prospects of Business for the Session—Bill That Are Expected to Be Passed—The Postmaster General's Report—Notes.

WASHINGTON City, Dec. 1.—The second and last session of the Forty-eighth congress has opened; it closes on March 4, 1885.

Although sure to draw a large crowd of spectators, there is usually less interest in the house of representatives than in the opening day of the session than on almost any other day of the session. Aside from the mutual greetings and chaffing among members, congratulations, and regards on election, or defeat as the case may be; there is but little of personal interest, and there is less of general interest connected with the opening of the session. The old officers take their positions, and the members drop into their old seats at the full of the gavel. The chaplain offers a few familiar prayers, and the speaker directs the members to be seated.

Then comes the president's message, which is read by the clerk at the desk, a small percentage of members paying any attention to it. After the message, the session is adjourned.

Unless the unexpected happens the session will be uneventful. The calendar in both the senate and house are well supplied with measures of vast general importance, but it is quite probable that the appropriations bills will consume the greater part of the session, and that little other legislation will be accomplished.

There appears to be good ground for the belief that the pension laws are of secondary importance, and that the bill will be referred to a committee.

TWO NEW ORLEANS GIRLS GO MAN HUNTING.

One of Them Brings Down Her Betrayer, the Other Not So Good a Shot—A New York Woman's Experience with a Musket.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 1.—At 9:30 o'clock Saturday night Jack Logan, aged 21 years, son of Matthew Logan, a large sheet-iron worker, and a prominent citizen of New Orleans, who has been several times elected to municipal and state offices, with J. Davison, a United States marshal, and a young man well known about town, were walking on Canal street. They were approached by two young women, Georgiana and Ellen Conway, sisters. Without a word of warning Georgiana Conway drew a revolver, which had been obtained from a gunsmith, and opened fire upon the young men, shooting Logan in the right jaw, shattering it, and in the back, in the region of the kidneys, inflicting dangerous wounds. Davison escaped without injury. The girls were arrested, and Logan was taken to the hospital. It is known that about a week ago a brother of the girls applied to Police Justice Ford to use his power as a magistrate or influence some man to induce Davison to turn one of them. The shooting became general excitement.

John Logan still lives at the hospital in a critical condition, with little chance of recovery. Investigation of the case shows that Logan and Davison visited the girls at home until their brother forbade them. They then intended them to leave home and live with them. The girls say they led miserable lives and continually pined for the men to marry them. They finally returned home, both envious, and determined to kill their seducers. For several nights they have promenaded Canal street looking for the men. Walking along the sidewalk, they shot at both girls, drawing revolvers and firing simultaneously. Davison said when the younger sister fired again, the bullet grazed his neck. Georgiana's bullet struck Logan in the back, passing through the kidneys. A struggle ensued for possession of the weapon, and the girl fired again, shattering Logan's jaw, and he fell.

Both girls were visited in prison Sunday, and were found cool and collected. Josephine, the older, said her shot were not very effective. They are very pretty brunettes, well educated, and belong to respectable family. James Conway, their brother, was arrested as an accessory.

Witnesses to the shooting say the girls were perfectly cool throughout the whole affair, and did not show any excitement, but proclaimed to the crowd that assembled that the young men had ruined them and they proposed to prevent them meeting any other girls. The mother and brother say that they made every effort to have the injured done the girls visited. They refused to interfere with the young men, but they refused to interfere with the girls before the criminal court, but when called there was no law against seduction in Louisiana.

Becoming desperate, the girls then warned their seducers to right them or they would suffer. No attention being paid to this, the shooting followed.

DEATH AND ATTEMPTED POISONING.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Augusta Koster, a young dressmaker, who came to this city from Berlin in 1878, at the Jefferson marked police court, Saturday, accused Horace Roberts Montague Maddock, a dashing young fellow of 23 years, who speaks half a dozen languages, with abandoning her. Some years ago Maddock obtained a commission in the British army, and left his native town of London, England, for service in India. Two years ago he turned up in the city, having come from Chicago, and met Miss Koster in a Fourth avenue boarding-house. He was then getting occasional employment as "spotter" on the Fourth avenue, horse car line. The conduct of the couple gained for them a notice to quit their boarding-house. The two then began housekeeping, but Montague soon disappeared. The Koster woman, however, occasionally heard of him marrying other girls. She finally traced him to Rochester, where she found him located as "Dr. Maddock," engaged in the vending of "proprietary" medicines. "Dr. Maddock" conducted a small drug store in Rochester less than a month ago. He was astounded when his partner informed him in the inner consultation room, while engaged with a patient, that "his wife from New York wished to see him." When Augusta clutched at his throat was released, he arranged for dinner. She consented to go with him to Buffalo. They stopped at the United States hotel. After dinner they had some wine, and the "doctor" went out to purchase two tickets for New York. He did not return, and she realized that she had been duped. Augusta remained at her hotel, and found that Horace, who had been taken away, and a partly emptied bottle of strichnine substituted. She also discovered that her glass on the table contained a considerable quantity of strichnine. Fortunately she had not drunk much of it. At this point a boy brought her a ticket to New York, saying that "a gentleman on the street" had told him to deliver it. Augusta returned to the city. The judge told the woman that the man was not within the jurisdiction of the court. The woman was then told that she would return to Rochester and compel him to marry her, when she would immediately discard him.

It seems to be generally accepted that fraud was committed, and the United States officials who are making the investigation say they have the evidence of fraud and who is most at fault complete. The parties alleged to have had a hand in it will appear before the grand jury and be asked to tell what they know. Mr. Brandt, the Democratic contestants, has ordered the mandamus proceeding begun Saturday in his behalf to be stopped and says that if he is convinced of the fraud he will not contest.

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC COUNCIL.

YOUNGSTOWN, Dec. 1.—There is considerable interest taken among the Roman Catholic priests in council here over reports from Rome as to who is to receive the "hat hat" among them. It is generally believed, however, that the election will be held in January. As the Sunday service of the council the deacons passed during the week were read and confirmed. Bishop Hammes of Dubuque, Iowa, was the preacher, and discussed upon the sanctity of the church. In the course of his sermon he said that sanctity is the church; that the Roman Catholic church claims the gift of infallibility and dedicates the world to point to one doctrine that she has ever changed one iota. He said she had Christianized Europe, and had since that day no greater obstacle among the heathen than that men who told them that the church had more Christians than they had heathens had gods.

KEEP AN EYE ON YOUR COAL STOVES.

DAYTON, Ohio, Dec. 1.—Mrs. A. L. Hinsing and her two daughters were found upon the floor in their room, Sunday morning, in an unconscious condition, being rendered so by coal gas which had escaped during the night from a self-feeding anthracite coal stove. The dampers of the stove had been closed in such a manner that the gas could not pass out through the pipe, and it filled the room. During the night one of the daughters, feeling herself almost suffocated, attempted to get up, but she fell to the floor, awakening her brother. The brother, awakening out of his sleep, beheld his daughter lying on the floor. She immediately arose and attempted to pick her up, but she too fell to the floor unconscious. The second daughter, who also fell to the floor in her attempt to get up, managed to crawl to the door upon her hands and feet, and by knocking succeeded in awakening her brother. The windows and doors were immediately opened with the ladies for several hours before he succeeded in bringing them back to consciousness. They are still in a precarious condition, and it is feared that one of the daughters will not recover.

A DYING MAN FOR DISSECTION.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 1.—Dr. P. J. Castro killed himself at the Morris house Saturday by putting a bullet through his brain. For fear of insanity, and desperation are given as the probable causes. He left a letter dated July 13, saying that he had lost nearly all his fortune and seen many ups and downs, and contemplated suicide. He was a contributor to story papers at times, and wrote a story for the last New York Clipper, describing his death in a dream. He sometimes practised medicine, and did so in Chicago some years ago. He left a letter giving his body to the Chicago Medical College. He was about 45 years of age.

THE CHAUFFEUR WON'T SEE THE POINT.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 1.—Considerable comment is caused by the fact that the Democrats have placed in nomination Hon. Simon E. Baldwin, of the Yale law school, and a prominent Independent, for the office of "mayor." The duties of this office are to look after vagrant dogs and cattle that may be roaming the streets. It is not known whether the nomination was made as a joke or in sober earnest.

THE BOSS TRYING TO GET BISMARCK'S HELP.

The Odd Fellows and their families enjoyed a pleasant social reunion at Odd Fellows hall on Saturday evening.

Crystal Temple of Honor, No. 32, met in regular weekly session this evening, in their lodge room, Judd block.

At two o'clock this afternoon no arrangements had been made for the burial of the late H. E. Myers, who was found dead at his home in the first ward on Friday morning.

Mr. S. H. Allen, of Beloit, the new superintendent of the Rock county poor farm and insane asylum, will assume control of that institution on Thursday of this week, relieving Supt. M. N. Conant, resigned.

The annual meeting of the Rock county agricultural society will be held at the court house, next Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. Officers will be elected, and other business of importance will come before the meeting.

The skaters are having all the enjoyment that they desire, taking their choice between the roller and the regular ice skating. The idea of the "good pond" is a popular place for those who prefer to the hard wood floor.

The three ready-made clothing nations draw large crowds on Saturday evenings, and all did a good business. Auctioneer Bell, at Sonborn's, is quite a professional on the banjo and violin, and made good sport for the entertainment of the crowd present.

The November expenses of the Institution for the education of the blind, located in this city, as audited by the state board of supervision, foot up $1,284.41, several thousand dollars less than any of the other state charitable or penal institutions.

Mr. F. M. Scanlan, who has been engaged in the practice of law at Boscoebel in Grant county, has recently come to Janesville and associated himself with his brother, Mr. C. M. Scanlan. The new firm will continue business at the old office, under the firm name of C. M. & F. M. Scanlan.

The prohibitionists at their meeting on Saturday afternoon transacted very little business, in fact they only appointed a committee consisting of Prof. J. J. Elsizell, of Beloit; B. S. Hoxie, of Evansville; Rev. G. W. Lawrence and M. DeGroot, Janesville, and J. F. Cleghorn, of Clinton, a committee on reorganization, and to superintend the formation of prohibition clubs in every voting precinct in the country.

SCANLAN.—Yesterday the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Scanlan, corner of School street and Center avenue, was turned into deep mourning, as the tender life of their infant daughter Josephine, departed from its earthly to its heavenly home. The little one was aged only sixteen months, and in their affliction the bereaved family have the sympathy of a large circle of friends. The funeral took place from the home of the parents at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

PERSONAL.—Meals, Colling, Wray & Retheram, the contractors and builders of the new Baptist church, are crowding that edifice to completion as fast as possible. The class room is completed and will be occupied on Thursday evening of this week by the prayer meeting of the Baptist society. The Sunday school room will be occupied next Sunday by the Baptist society in regular worship. The whole building will be completed and ready for occupancy at an early date.

—Meals, Colling, Wray & Retheram, the solo proprietor of the Daily and Weekly Recorder, Major Rockwood's interest having been transferred to him to-day. Just what the policy of the paper will be in the future, the Gazette is not warranted in stating, although there is a probability that it will be somewhat independent in politics. Mr. Leonard is very popular in Janesville and has many personal friends in both parties. Under his management, the Recorder will be conservative, judicious in tone, and fair in all things.

—Mr. W. H. Leonard has become the solo proprietor of the Daily and Weekly Recorder. Major Rockwood's interest having been transferred to him to-day. Just what the policy of the paper will be in the future, the Gazette is not warranted in stating, although there is a probability that it will be somewhat independent in politics. Mr. Leonard is very popular in Janesville and has many personal friends in both parties. Under his management, the Recorder will be conservative, judicious in tone, and fair in all things.

—One of the most attractive show windows in the city is that of Mr. W. G. Wheelock, the veteran Mainstreetcrafterman. The old store is crowded full of as choice a selection of staple and fancy articles as ever were exhibited in Janesville, and the windows are decorated in a manner that reminds one forcibly that Christmas is not very far away. Decorated chimes in wonderful and unique designs. Hanging and stationary lamps in a large variety of patterns, and a large display of useful and decorative articles, will do much towards making Christmas merry, with a moderate investment of money. Don't forget the old stand on Main street when making holiday selections.

—This morning Mr. Horatio Buchholz, the popular carriage manufacturer at the corner of Bluff and East Milwaukee street, shipped one of his large omnibuses to Messrs. Kingston & Co., Madison, Wis. The bus is a handsome one, and speaks well for the good work produced at Buchholz's shop. Next week Mr. Buchholz will ship two of his large carriages to New Orleans, for service in one of the liveried stables during the World's Exposition. These vehicles are meeting with a wide sale, and are giving the best of satisfaction—a good recommendation for the excellent work turned out at these shops. Mr. Buchholz also keeps a full line of sleighs and cutters, of his own manufacture, in all the latest styles, which are sold at reasonable a price as any in the market.

—On Saturday afternoon the employees of the Recorder Printing Co., "pooled" their pocket money and purchased a handsome gold-headed ebony cane which they presented to Major S. S. Rockwood, who was about to retire from the editorial chair of that paper. The cane is a handsome one, and the major will no doubt appreciate the gift as coming from those who were compelled, by the aid of the midnight lamp, to put his brilliant editorials into presentable shape before the readers of that paper.

The cane was selected from the stock of F. C. Cook & Co., jewelers, opposite the post office, and the engraving, "From the Recorder Printing Company, Major S. S. Rockwood, Janesville, Wis." 1884, was the work of Mr. Ed. Church.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Emma L. Salzman, wife of Mr. T. J. Salzman, died at her home on Milton avenue, on Sunday morning at 6:15 o'clock, of peritonitis. The deceased had been out of health for some two years, but the illness which directly led to her death, did not begin until four weeks past Wednesday, and she was not considered to be in a dangerous condition until within a very few days of the final struggle. Her suffering was intense most of the time, but she endured the pains and trials with remarkable Christian fortitude, and passed away with calm resignation and without the touch of fear. A brief funeral service will be held at the family residence—Milton avenue, at 8:30 o'clock to-morrow morning (Tuesday), when the remains will be taken on the 9:45 train to Milwaukee where they will be buried in the Forest Home cemetery. The Rev. C. B. Wilcox, of Court Street church, will officiate at the house service.

Miss Salzman was born in New York City September 6th, 1845, and was married to Mr. Salzman twenty-one years ago last May. For many years she had been a devoted member of the Congregational church, and at the time of her death was a member of Spring Street Congregational church, Milwaukee, where she was honored and esteemed for her strong Christian character.

This little episode prompts us to say

Janesville is recognized as a republican city and Rock county with her three thousand majority for the defeated party.

The ruthless hand of death has strangely afflicted the family of Mr. Salzman.

Three children, by his first wife were taken away in their young years, and five by the one who has just left a vacant chair in the home, have gone to their eternal rest.

MRS. JANE RAUNOS.

Mrs. Jane Raunos, mother of Mr. Clark E. Raunos, of this city, died at Fort Howard, last Friday, and was buried at that place on Sunday. Mrs. Raunos was one of the old pioneers of Wisconsin. Her maiden name was Underhill, and was born in Poughkeepsie, New York, April 24th, 1818. She married Mr. Charles Raunos, and came to Wisconsin in 1836, settling in Mukwonago, Waukesha county. Her husband went to California by the overland route in 1849, where he died in 1850. Since then Mrs. Raunos has lived at Palmyra and Watertown, in this state, and during the past eight years lived at Fort Howard. She had a wide circle of friends, who loved her for her many high qualities of heart and mind. She leaves five children to mourn her death—four sons and one daughter—J. E. Raunos, Adaline Underhill, and H. A. Raunos, of Fort Howard, Charles Raunos, of Berlin, in this state, and Clark E. Raunos, of Janesville.

Mr. Clark E. Raunos and wife, of this city, went to Fort Howard on Saturday and attended the funeral on Sunday afternoon, returning home on the early train this morning.

ATHLPHORUS.—What is it? "A bear west of the mountains, the muscular contrivances of Athens the chthonian Athlaphorus. Muscular contrivances still go on. There seems to be an everlasting battle in man's system between Apollonian rheumatism and the healthy function. The latter takes off the guard, succumbs in pain and drags everything down with it. Apollonius goes armed with a mighty club. He must be met by shield and buckler, and spear, or he will win every time."
